Skinny Dip Candles Review and Giveaway! - ENDED!

<http://feedproxy.google.com/~r/blogspot/oKBh/~3/80vDC1rNgZo/skinny-dip-candles-review-and-giveaway.html>

I had the pleasure of reviewing Skinny Dip Candles recently, and I was really amazed by them! They are truly unlike anything I've seen. You actually burn the candle, let the candle melt slightly, and then POUR the melted oils on your skin!! I know this sounds painful, but it is simply warm, nurturing lotion! My little girls even love it! They constantly ask me to rub it on them! You see, because of the ingredients in Skinny Dip Candles, they have a very low melt point. When fully melted they're just 102 degrees - and that's not even as warm as a hot tub! This is from the Skinny Dip website: Ingredients include: cosmetic-grade soy, avocado oil, coconut oil, shea butter, beeswax, sunflower oil, cocoa butter, vitamin E, and scented oils for aroma. The ingredients are not only natural, but they are extremely rich and moisturizing. A little bit will go a very long way, so please use sparingly. When you use the right amount, the melted oils will soak into your skin completely within just a few minutes. How can you use the Skinny Dip Candle? Cuticle treatments - it's like a paraffin dip, only better! You don't have to remove the "wax." Dry elbows - the Skinny Dip Candle can be used melted, or unmelted and massaged directly into the skin. Heels and feet - for dry feet in winter, or bare sandal feet in summer, the Skinny Dip Candle will help get your feet softer and smoother in no time! Massage - use a more generous portion for a therapeutic, pampering, or sensual body massage. Anywhere your skin is dry or flakey. That can be arms and legs, especially if you live in dryer climates. Would you LOVE to go Skinny Dipping?? :) The wonderful people at Skinny Dip are offering to one lucky reader of The Vaagen Family Blog a Pamper Pack!
